Hot Fun in the Summertime!

The Latest Gainesville Super Class Graduates

Another diverse group of individuals recently completed the two day Super Class at Frank Hawley's Drag Racing School in Gainesville, Florida. Fifteen drivers shared in the exhilarating experience of making 150+ MPH quarter mile passes down the famed north central Florida strip, all while working toward their NHRA competition licenses in either Super Comp or Super Gas .

Harold Murray of Charleston, SC was one of the recent graduates. Murray spent seven years in the U.S. Air Force and is currently a manufacturing engineer on Boeing's 787 DreamLiner program. He works for Global Aeronautica, LLC, which is a partially owned subsidiary of The Boeing Company. Murray has been a crew member on several bracket teams for the last few years and decided it was time he made the move to the driver's seat.

Murray's background has shown him that there is no substitute for proper training, thus his choice to attend Frank Hawley's Drag Racing School. "The Super Class was so much more than I expected," exclaimed Murray. "I have watched our drivers stage the cars for years, but I had no idea how complex a task it could be. An added bonus was that Frank Hawley taught the class himself. Frank's personality and passions lend themselves to an enriched learning experience. Not only did we learn how to take the car from the staging lanes to the finish line, but we learned lessons that can apply in every aspect of business and life. What a great class!"

"I really didn't expect Frank Hawley to teach the class himself," he added. "And I didn't expect to dive as deeply as we did into the components behind reaction time, namely the visual, neurological, and emotional components. It was great to have that background knowledge. It all made perfect sense!"

Murray attended the class with friend Carole Hoover and it didn't take long after class for them to start making their future racing plans.

"I look forward to racing a Super Comp dragster with Carole. We're still discussing who the driver will be," he laughed. "We may have to field two cars!"

Murray hints that this is only the beginning of his drag race training at Frank Hawley's Drag Racing School. He plans on returning to Gainesville to attend the school's Alcohol Race Tech class in the near future.
